Fort Monroe, Va., May 23 .- The twenty first annirersary of the Hampton Normal and Agricultural school at Hampton, Va., was celebrated to-day. The school at Hampton, Va., was celebrated to-day. The coming to age of this, the oldest of the educational fastitutions established for the people freed by the war, has been appropriately marked. Every day of the anniversary week has had its own service, grave or gay. On Sunday evening General O. O. Howard the school interesting reminiscences of old "contraband days," and of the origin of the Hampton School. Visitors came and went through the week, inspecting the school at their leisure. On Monday, the actual commencement day, the great gymnasium was comfortably filled for the afternoon exercises. Among those present were the Rev. Dr. C. H. Park-hurst, the Rev. Dr. M. E. Strieby, Mr. and Mrs. Elbert B. Monroe, John Habberton, and H. B. Silliman, of New-York; the Rev. Stopford Brooks, jr., and General J. P. B. Marshall, of Boston. The morning was spent in inspecting class-rooms, and the work-shops and industrial exhibits. Farm products, uniform suits and garments of various kinds were shown, with handsome wood work and fron work, thware, harness and shoes. Some handsome steel hammers, the handlwork of negro and Indian boys, attracted attention.

The afternoon exercises, consisting of essays by the graduating class and graduates from abroad, were marked by the practical sense and good spirit which distinguished the commencement essays of Hampton from year to year. The salutatorian, a dark faced girl of womanly bearing, gave her experience in a log-carin school-house. The valedictorian, a manly young Omaha Indian, spoke of the problem before his race in entering on citizenship. The yearly prize for excellence in elementary studies was taken by a bright faced little girl of the senior class. The Indian students' industrial song closed the exercises effectively. The groups bore the implements of trade, rakes, plows, saws, etc.; the girls with brooms, needles, wash-boards and loaves of bread and cake, and each in turn sang of their purpose to work their way to divilization and Joined in a resounding chorus of rejoicing in their citizenship. A report comes by cable that Manager Amberg is again endeavoring to effect an engagement for next season with the Saxe-Meiningen Company. Several managers, including Henry E. THE MODEL FOR THE ARCH. SOME CHANGES SUGGESTED IN THE PRESENT

DESIGN. To the Editor of The Tribune.

Sir: In your issue of yesterday under the heading "What Brooklyn Talks Of," your contributor says: "There are a few who regret that Brooklyn has not of the "purity of the design" of this arch, its fitness that on no account should the design of the proposed marble arch vary one jot or tittle from this temporary structure. It must be admitted that for a hastily de signed decorative feature the temporary arch was in much better taste than the vulgar structures which did duty as "triumphal arches" in other places along the line of march. But that it deserves to be per cally deny. In the first place, the statue of Washington is in a bad position. It should be within easy view from the ground or else omitted altogether. Some time ago it was proposed to erect a statue to General Stark in Bennington, the design of which was a shaft 100 feet high with a statue of General Stark on top. This drew from the late James Jackson Jarves the remark that it would be better to bury the statue 100 feet below ground than to stick it 100 feet above.

statue 100 feet below ground than to stick it 100 feet above.

Then the arch itself has not sufficient depth of piers on each side for a monumental structure. It is "weak on its pins," and was probably designed so on account of the cramped space between the roadway and the sidewalk, so as not to contract too much the space used for the sidewalk. This could be avoided by placing the arch on the park side of the street, where it would have elbow room and would not come in competition with the dwellings on each side. There are other matters of detail which are open for criticism, but I have said enough to show that if a memorial arch is to be creeted, this "definite and satisfactory model" is susceptible of a considerable improvement, and I fancy that no one is more aware of this than its designer, who is an architect and artist at the same time.

THE CORNELL ALUMNI TRUSTEESHIP.

Sir: I read with some surprise an article in your issue of May 14, headed "A Lively Cornell Election." wherein the impression is evidently sought to be conveyed that the candidacy of Mr. Frank H. Hiscock for alumni trustee of Cornell is factional and intended to be hostile to my father, ex-President White. As the circulation of such an blea uncorrected might operate to the disadvantage of Mr. Hiscock, I think it only fair to him to state, as my father is Europe, that to my certain knowledge the impression thus attempted to be created is absolutely unfound Mr. Hiscock, so far from representing a spirit enmity toward ex-President White, is personally of his most esteemed friends. A PLEA FOR THE CITY HALL PARK. To the Editor of The Tribune

Sir: As a citizen of Brooklyn doing business in New-York, my office overlooking the City Hall Park, I hope that you will reiterate your protests against any more encreachments upon that last little piece of open space which remains downtown. Tear away the Register's office, and the engine-house, and Court of sessions buildings, and we will have something like the park we once had before the Postoffice Entiding the park we once had below. Cleared of these buildings, ruined it from below. Cleared of these buildings, we would have something like the view of the Bridge we would have something like the view of the Bridge which ought to open upon that supendous structure. Besides this, coming from Brooklyn to New-York would not be running against a brick wall, or a marble wall, but entering into the park with the beautiful old city Hall in its centre. Do keep urging some regard for taste in such a matter as the central feature of the lower part of a great city. See to it that a law like that passed last year shall forbid the erection of the new municipal buildings in the park, as well for the sake of the buildings as for that of the park.

MAYOR GRANT VIGOROUSLY DENOUNCED

GERMAN DEMOCRATS SAY HE SHOULD HAVE GIVEN THEM AN OFFICE OR TWO.

The Central Committee of the German Democratiorganization met last night and severely criticised Mayor Grant. There was a large attendance. John P. Schuchmann presided. After a little routine busiess had been transacted Dr. Drescatus took the floor, and in forcible German denounced Mayor Grant's acuon in not giving proper recognition to the German element in the city in his recent distribution of fat flices. The speech created quite a commotion. The speaker wanted it to go on record that the Mayor, in his appointments, bad disappointed the organization to a great extent. He said that the Mayor had doubtless considered the German Democracy of this city merely as hewers of wood and drawers of water. He made a motion to the effect that the fact of their Ispleasure in the matter should go on record at nce. Mayor Grant, he said, either through ignorance r in want of 'scrimination as to nationality, had treated the Germans shamefully, Delegate Dempwolf seconded the motion. Delegate Sutter said that the Mayor should at least have appointed a German to the Charities Commission, for he owed his present place to the German vote. Isaac Cohen opposed the motion, and gave it as his opinion that, should it go on record, it would tend only to injure the Democratic party. R. Miller spoke for the motion, and said that if German ditizens could manage to tack on a " Mac" or an "O" to their names they would receive recognition from the Mayor. This last remark provoked great cheers and laughter. Schoemaner said that Joseph Koch, of the Excise Board, was credited to the Germans as a German; but he added that Commissioner Koch was no more a German than he (the speaker) was an Irishman.

The chairman said: "We do not demand spoils, but we want the German element represented in our but we want the German element represented in our various boards in the city. It is a matter of contract between government and citizens. We gave them our support and we want a fair representation."

The resolution was somewhat medified, and then read as follows: "Resolved, That the German element in New-York, in the recent appointments made by Mayor Grant, was not considered as it should have been according to its numerical strength and its rights."

It was put to the house, and unanimously adopted

BOSTON BEANS AND BEAN-EATERS.

ACROSS THE OCEAN IN A BOWBOAT.

From The Lewiston Journal.

Dr. Bibber is a skifful Bath physician with a large practice, but has a queer hobby. He is anxious to have the ocean crossed in a rowboat. He sunk a round sum of money in fitting out a man for the voyage, a few years ago, and the man was lost—the coast, the never has been heard from since be left the coast. The doctor's arder is not dampened in the least, however. He says that to a stout man who hasn't chick or child dependent on him and is willing to try the experiment, he will furnish a life-boat that positively cannot try over and all the supplies for the voyage.

Such a hobby is of a piece with the orchid-collecting manis and the pottery crare. There's no accounting for the freakishness of human interest.

IT TOOK HIM OFF HIS FEET.

From "How to be Halpy Though Married."

True courtesy is "the beauty of the heart." How well it is that no one class has a monopoly in this kind of beauty; that while favorable circumstances undoubtesly do render good manners more common among persons moving in higher rather than in lower spheres, there should nevertheless be no positive hindrance to the poorest class having good manners. Here is an illustration of true politeness exhibited by both classes of scolety. One day, in havily turning the corner of a crooked street in London, a young lady ran with great force against a ragged little beggar boy, and almost knocked him down. Stopping as seen as she could, she turned round and said very kindly to the boy: "I beg your pardon, my little fellow; I am very sorry that I ran against you." The poor boy was assonished. He looked at her for a moment in surprise, and then, taking off about three-quarters of a cap, he made a low bow and said, while a broad, pleasant xuite spread over his face: "You was residing miss, and welcome: and the quarters of a cap, he made a low bow and said, we broad, pleasant smile spread over his face; "can hev my pardiog, miss, and welcome; and next time you run agin me you may knock me clown and I won't say a word." After the lady passed on he turned to his companion and said; asy, Jim, it's the first time I ever had anybody my parding, and it's kind e' took me off my feet.

A REACTION FROM FAUNTLEROY CLOTHING. From The Chicago Herald.

A REACTION PROM PACKILEROY CLOTHESO.

"Why don't you buy your little boy a Lord Fauntlerov suit!" asked a salesman in a big retail drygoods store Saurelay, of a broker who was engaged in outfitting his youngster for the summer. "Simply because I don't want him to look like every other kid in town," was the reply. "Refore the summer is well advanced every small boy in the city and suburbs will be rigged out in one of those suits, and when a dozen of them come together it will look like a basehall club. No, sir; I want my boy to be odd, and the broker asked to be shown something in that line.
"I don't know but you're pretty near right," said the salesman, as they walked toward another department of the store, "but the 'veit still romains that this "Fauntleroy' craze has been a big thing for us. Why, during the first week we've sold over 1,000 of those Fauntleroy suits. They come at all prices—some as high as $25—and there is certain to be a big run on them this summer."

KATHER GOING TO EXTREMHS. From The Pittsburg Chronicle.

"Are they boys or girls!" asked the motherly lady, meeting a pair of twins in a baby carriage.

"Wun of alch kind, mum." replied the nurse.

"What are their names!"

"Maxie, mum, and Minnie, mum."

"Oh, I see; that's the long and the short of it."

WHAT KILLED W. I. BISHOP

THE INQUEST INTO HIS DEATH BEGUN.

TAKING TESTIMONY AS TO THE CONDITION OF HIS BODY BEFORE THE AUTOPSY.

Coroner Lovy began yesterday, in room No. 19, City Hall, his inquest into the cause of the death of the mind-reader, Washington Irving Wellington Bishop, and of the circumstances under which the autopsy on his body was begun, less than four hours after death had been pronounced, by Dr. John A. Irwin, to have occurred, W. Bourks Cookran, Edward H. Moeran and William J. Lettch appeared for Dr. Irwin; E. L. C. Abbett and Thomas A. Atchison for Mrs. Mabel Bishop, the widow; N. J. Waterbury for Dr. Hance; Dr. John Logan, who is both lawyer and physician, for Dr. Ferguson; Samuel H. Randall and George Francis Train for Mrs. Eleanor Fletcher Bishop, the mother, and Harry Macdona for the District-Attorney's office. The following jurymen were chosen: Clarence D. Fewall, Dr. Franklin Delafield, Alexander T. Lane, Gabriel Blow, Maurice A. Magner, William Relmann, R. A. Wiesner, Leopold Well, Isidore Stern, Dr. William Henry Dustman, Otto Von Borrier and Dr. Louis Deplasse. The three physicians, Drs. John A. Irwin, Frank Ferguson and Hance, who are held under ball by the Coroner, were present, as were Mrs. Bishop, sr., accompanied by Mrs. Chase, Mrs. Man tinot and Miss Ida Orme. Mr. Train had a brief consisting of several large sheets of wrapping-paper, on which were pasted a number of newspaper cuttings. He passed written comments and verses to the reporters, and also distributed buttonhole bouquets.

Mr. Abbett asked the medical men on the jury if they were acquainted with or had any bias against any of the defendants, or if there was anything in the node of professional ethics which would hinder or prevent their passing judgment upon the actions of other doctors. This was answered in the negative. DISCUSSING A LEGAL POINT.

Mr. Cockran objected to the coroner inquiring into anything that was done after death had occurred. Subsequent proceedings were, he maintained, to be taken cognizance of, if at all, by another court, There was considerable discussion on this point be tween counsel, which was ended by the coroner saying that he would allow the inquiry to cover the ground whether or not the cadse of death was such as should have come before a coroner. Wilton Lackaye, the first witness called by Mr. Atchison said:

I am an actor and a member of the Lambs' Club, went there on Sunday evening, May 12, about 9 o'clock. Hishop, at the request of certain members, gave an exhibition of his powers. At the close of his first feat he seemed exhausted, but was not unconscious, and soon recovered. He then attempted another, and at its close fell back in a fit. This time he did not revive. He was attended to by others, I believe Aldrich, Greene and Stewart. I ob-served him at the time of both attacks. After the first he was not rigid; after the second he was. Dr. Irwin said, after the second attack, that Bishop was suffering from catalepsy. He also said he did not believe that the performance was a trick, but was the result of some peculiar power which scientists did not understand. I last saw Bishop about I o'clock, when he was removed to a bedroom upstairs. Clay M. Greene said:

I am a dramatic author and corresponding secretary of the Lamba. Dr. Irwin is a member of that club. I was standing close by Bishop as he fell back in the s cond attack. I helped to lay him on the floor. second attack. I helped to lay him on the most like the three set and his limbs rigid. His arms were dying round and I held one. At the time of his death the eyes were glazed, the mouth was open and the head was on one side. I felt the fingers of one hand and they were flexible. Soon after death an electric all the state of the battery was applied. The only result was a slight hattery was applied. The only result is a saw a small battery applied early in the morning. It did not seem to have any effect. I do not know if the battery used after death was the same one, but I thought from the noise made that it was stronger. The motion producad seemed to be a slight bending of the spine. I did not not notice any movement of the limbs, which, however, were covered by the bodelothes. I did not see any brundy administered.

Mr. Stewart, of the club, told me he had the effects found on Blahop. He said nothing about papers. I heard nothing of any paper asking that Bishop's body should not be dissected. Louis Aldrich made a statement to me about some paper baying been taken Rishop's peckets, but I think that was not till the sucreceing day. I believe the body was removed between 2 and 3 o'clock in the afternoon. Before the body was removed, I had been to Bishop's rooms in the Hodman House, and found his mother's address in Philadelphia. It was at Dr. Irwin's suggestion that I went in search of his relatives or their addresses.

UNSUCCESSFUL EFFORTS.

An attempt was unsuccessfully made by Counsellor Atchison to get both of these witnesses to say that br. Irwin had stated that Bishop's mysterious power might be explained by an examination of his brain soon after his death. Louis Aldrich said to a reporter that the paper alluded to was a doctor's prescription, Gus, Themas, the third witness, testified:

I had known Bishop about two months—was his advance agent. I first saw him on the day of his death shout a quarter before 11 in the forencon. I was told his

His bosom was bare, and the poles of a battery were being moved slowly about by Dr. Irwin, one in the region of the heart and the other on the right side of the neck. J. G. Ritchie, Bishop's manager, came in soon after. Before death occurred 1 ifted an eyelid and touched an eyeball, but there was no reaction. I counted heart-beats by a vein in the throat, as pulsation was hardly perceptible at the wrist. There were 104 beats to the minute. I sat there till Bishop died at 12:10. Dr.

Irwin and Mr. Stewart were also present.

After death Dr. Irwin held his ear over Bishop's heart. After death Dr. Irwin held his ear over hisnop's heart.

Neither heat nor respiration was perceptible. I took Bishop's hand; it was turning blue. The battery was tried without response. I went to Philadelphia on the 2 c'clock train to inform Bishop's relatives. I had heard Bishop speak of the possibility of an autopsy after death. I had seen him before in a cataleptic state, but never in suything like the final state, which Dr. Irwin said was oma. A general conversation was held soon after the death, in which Messra Stewart, Ward, Charles W. Thomas and Dr. Irwin took part. Dr. Irwin said it was desirable to have an autopsy. Which could be held by the consent of the parties interested or by order of the coroner. He considered the former the more desirable. I never heard litahop smeak of his mother. I did not know of any at-tempt being made to secure his mother's consent to the autopsy.
S. G. Ritchie said:

Bishop seemed to recognize me slightly, but age he soon passed into a comatose state, unlike anything I had ever seen him in. Dr. Irwin administered hypodermic injections, I believe, of brandy and milk. I heard Dr. Irwin say that an autopay should be made. I sent a tele Our readers will find on the fifth page to-day a gram to Bishop's relatives to an address in Philadelphia varied and interesting assortment of "Want" advertise.

HINDERED FROM PRESSING ON TO TEXAS. The steamship Obdam, of the Rotterdam Line, on her arrival from Holland last week, brought among her passengers seven young Englishmen, who were bound for Texas, to go into business there. One of the number had been assisted over by the Prison Aid So and the Commissioners of Emigration stopped him. He then declared that his companions had received similar aid, and, although they denied it, they were detained, pending investigation. The steamship company went on their bonds, and the case was taken to the British Consul in this city, and the British Minister. In the meantime the men were detained on board, at work. They proved their case and were re-leased, but the release did not arrive until after the vessel had sailed, although she delayed her departure for saveral days.
